Councils have a duty of care in the provision of access to health services. This is ignored in the document, the focus being on health living and environments. Reference is made to the many GP surgeries and the hospital, but no acknowledgment of the impact on these services by the growth in population is made, namely that the existing primary care estate has very limited ability to expand and most surgeries are full to or beyond capacity already, and the hospital is too small for the existing population. Unless significant and sustained discussion is health with the ICB in order to plan for the actual delivery of health to the population, the council is in breach of their duty to provide access to health services (Care act 2014)
